FARM JOTTINGS

TO GIVE OUTLOOK IN 1936 FOR CANADA'S AGRICULTURE

The Agricultural Situation and Outlook, 1936, an annual report issued by the Departments of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce of the Dominion Government in Ottawa, is now being prepared by the officers of these and other Departments. This publication will present in concise, readable form, an analysis of the factors which have influenced production and marketing of farm products in 1935 and those which are likely to affect the supply of and the demand for those products in 1936. These problems are being considered from both foreign and domestic viewpoints. Through such a service it is hoped that farmers will be able to make better plans for crop and live stock production and marketing during the new year. It is, of course, impossible to foresee all the changes which may occur in 1936, particularly in regard to foreign agricultural policies and competition, but this review represents a careful analysis of available information in a manner which few individual farmers would be able to accomplish. The report itself is not the only means by which the farmer may be assisted in planning his business for the year; extension workers will be able to amplify it in the discussion of farmers' economic problems at public meetings or short courses in agriculture, and in advising farmers individually regarding their own farm operations. Moreover it is understood that other provinces may follow the lead of Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan in publishing Outlook reports for commodities of special interest to their farmers which cannot be dealt with in detailed manner in an analysis of the Outlook for Canadian Agriculture as a national industry. The Agricultural Situation and Outlook for 1936 will be off the press early in January, 1936. It will be distributed by the Publicity and Extension Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture to which requests for copies should be addressed.

DAMAGE BY MOTHS CAN BE HEAVY IN WINTER

Under the impression that moths commit their depredations in the spring and summer months only, many people display little care in putting away their summer clothes for the winter. As a matter of fact, moths may be found in heated modern buildings all the year round. Prevention is better than cure; therefore it is necessary to use the same care in packing up summer clothing in the fall as is bestowed on winter clothes in the spring. Moths themselves do no harm, except that they lay eggs, larvae, the caterpillars, feeding otherwise damage, commences at once. As the young larvae are very sensitive to light, they seek out protected situations in the folds of furs or woollen garments, or in the interior of upholstered furniture. Summer garments before being laid by for winter should be thoroughly brushed, beaten, and shaken preferably in strong sunlight. If there are no air-tight trunks or chests handy, the clothing should be placed in cotton or paper bags, or in cardboard boxes sealed with strips of paper. As an alternative, the clothing should be wrapped in two thicknesses of strong wrapping paper, taking care that the edges are turned so that the moths cannot gain entrance. The control of moths which infest clothes is fully discussed in a circular prepared by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

CANADIANS TO COMPETE IN INTERNATIONAL SHOW

Farmers from both Eastern and Western Canada will again compete with farmers from all parts of the United States and other countries at the 36th annual International Live Stock Exhibition and the 17th International Grain and Hay Show, which opens in Chicago today, and continues until Saturday night, Dec. 7th. More than 12,000 head of live stock and 5,000 exhibits of grains and seeds have been entered. Ever since the Live Stock Exhibition and hay and grain show were inaugurated Canadians have each year carried off some of the most coveted awards. Last year at the close of the two events the Dominion had to its credit a total of 17 championships, 17 reserve championships, 66 first prizes and nearly 500 other prizes. Nine of the reserve championships were for live stock and eight for grains and seeds. The major victory in 1934 was the winning of the wheat championship by John B. Allsop of Wembley, Alberta, with Reward wheat, a variety of hard, red spring wheat originated by the Dominion Experimental Farms of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which made the 13th time this award had come to Canada since the Grain and Hay Show has been held at Chicago and the 20th time since the International Grain and Hay contests were introduced.

Among the wheat entries this year are seven from New South Wales, Australia, that have won the highest awards at the leading shows in the Commonwealth.

Having decided to close my Quesnel Yard at the end of November, I now offer the remainder of the stock at great reductions. In many cases the price asked is far below the cost of production.
Whilst these prices are for cash only, I shall be glad to meet, on a generous basis, old customers who may desire short-date credit accommodation.

ing the report shows that, with few exceptions, those appearing before the committee favored the principle of health insurance.

By actual count, 111 briefs went on record outright as favoring the principle, four were directly opposed, one was against a compulsory system and one other opposed it on religious grounds.

The early introduction of legislation by the province was favored by the great majority and particularly by those representing labor, women's groups and social welfare bodies.

On the other hand, delay to await study or possible legislation by the Dominion Government was advocated by thirteen briefs, including that of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Ten other briefs, including those of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Canadian Manufacturers Association, claimed that the present time was inopportune for legislation on health insurance because business has not sufficiently recovered from the depression.

The point arousing most interest dealt with the class of persons that should come under the scheme. Among the specific submissions the most frequent single one was that either all employees or every person within the province, should be included, rather than limiting the plan to those earning $200 per month and less.

On this point the doctors' committee, in their presentation to the hearings committee, was very much opposed to the majority view, for they argued strongly for limitation of the plan to those earning less than $125 per month.

Although the doctors' committee was among the most severe critics of the draft bill, and although they opposed early action to put health insurance into effect, three briefs from lay organizations charged that the plan was designed to benefit the organized medical profession greatly.

Another much-stressed argument, taken fully into account by the committee, was that the cost in the original draft scheme would involve too heavy a financial burden, both on employees and on industry.

Twenty-seven argued that the proposed maximum contributions from salaries of three per cent by employees and two per cent by employers, as suggested in the draft, were too great.

The question of whether cash benefits should be paid aroused much interest, it was indicated. A dozen or so submissions went into detail on this matter and the majority were opposed to it at the present time.

Concern was also manifested in the composition of the commission to administer the scheme. Both employers and employees are insisting on representation and ten groups urged that at least one woman be included.

The committee's work in collecting the various views is regarded as the most exhaustive public investigation ever carried out in this province before a piece of legislation was presented to the House. It gives, officials said, a clear cross-section of popular opinion on the proposals.

Public discussion of the scheme by no means closed with the presentation of the report, it was indicated. The department will continue its efforts to acquaint the public with all sides of the problem.

AT ANCHOR

The snowplow lies at anchor
Near the Municipal Hall,
While villagers do slip and slide;
Quite frequently to fall.

Thick ice covers our sidewalks,
Where it's likely to remain
Till summer's suns will glow again
Or June's warm showers rain.

Yet those in high authority
No action contemplate,
But when election time is near—
What promises they make.

It will not be surprising
If one cold winter's day
Some villager will meet his death,
The final price to pay

It would be cause for much regret
If such a thing occurs,
Then's not the time to fuss and fret
So clean the sidewalks sirs.

We know their yearly stipends
Are not so very high,
But they should do their duty,
Or honestly might try.

To render proper service,
So we can walk a path
Without some serious consequence
Or painful aftermath.

If we could only bottle up
The hot air we have heard
To thaw the icy sidewalks—
Before we are interred.

It would not then much matter,
If the snow plow did remain
At anchor on the Village lot,
Till summer comes again.

But if they can't do better
They may as well resign,
And let us have a manager,
Devoting all his time

To interests of the villagers,
And cut out all child's play.
Quesnel cannot afford to wait
Or else she'll rue the day.

But since the lines above were writ
De Good Lord sent some rain,
And in due course, we hope to see
Our sidewalks clean again.

BALDWIN SENDS BLUNT NOTE TO IL DUCE

Some months ago Mussolini, or perhaps one should say Italy, picked a quarrel with Ethiopia. We venture to say that there is not one person in ten thousand who can today tell the reason for this. Nevertheless, the matter has now become a crisis in world affairs and repetition of 1914 conditions is threatened. Fifty-two countries, through the League of Nations, have imposed economic sanctions against Italy. This amounts to a boycott.

At last someone has come out in to the open and asked for an explanation. This man is Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain. In the name of the Cabinet he has sent a note to Mussolini asking bluntly why he is fighting Ethiopia, what he hopes to gain by fighting Ethiopia and on what terms he will make peace.

Thus by one stroke he avoids the devious paths of other European ministers who are as yet shilly-shallying with the Italian War Lord.

This note, coming as it does, immediately after the refusal of Great Britain to allow gas and oil to enter Italy has infuriated Mussolini. The receipt of the French note from M. Laval to the effect that any act of war against Great Britain would be followed by a declaration of war on the part of France, has done nothing to aid his peace of mind.

Now that the bluff has been called, it may not be long before there is a withdrawal of Italian forces from Ethiopia. The withdrawal, that is, of those who are not as yet afflicted with illness or disease.

THE DOWNFALL OF FREDA

Quite an exciting time was witnessed in town a few days ago, when Freda, the pretty bantam hen belonging to one of our prominent citizens was "among the missing." The male bird, Freddie, was heard crowing with more than his usual vigor. A thorough search was instituted, and upon further investigation it was found that Freda had fallen into a pit. This had undoubtedly caused great anxiety on the part of her mate, Freddie.

A rescue party was at once organized, headed by one of our constables. Once again the policeman's task was not a happy one. In fact we are told on most excellent authority that it was a very delicate one in this case. For some time the rescuers worked diligently but without success and Freda was still in the depth of despair.

It was then decided to summon further assistance from others near by. One of them happened to be a temporary guest of His Majesty at local police headquarters. With much ingenuity and quick action the new recruit made an instrument of hook design and attached to it a long pole. Within a few seconds Freda was rescued. First aid was administered by members of the party. Had it not been for the quick action of the King's guest Freda might in a dish of chop-suey before this time.

In view of the gallant rescue work done by the last named of the life saving squad, we suggest that recommendation be made through the proper channels for some remittance of sentence which he is now serving.

Quesnel readers of The Vancouver Sun for November 21st were at first amazed and then amused on reading an article headed "Quesnel's Amazing Progress." It would appear that A. J. Elliott is not the only owner of a moving picture theatre in Quesnel, two being listed. Those in search of recreation will be glad to hear that boating, curling and football are now added to the lists of sports available. W. Greenley will be interested to learn that the bridge he built across the Fraser is a splendid concrete one. In fact, after reading the article people begin to wonder if they were not living in Vancouver after all; many indeed made a special trip to look at the municipal snow plow. We hardly dare entertain the thought, but can it be that someone has dared to play a hoax on the dear old Sun?

On Wednesday night an observer on the streets of Old Quesnelle-mouth might have seen sinister figures slinking along the sidewalks, keeping in the shadows as far as possible and from time to time furtively glancing over their shoulders. Was there another conspiracy? Were more stores to be burgled? Was the Royal Bank to be blasted or the creamery drunk dry? The mystery deepened when it was realized that the slinking groups consisted of government officials and others and the rendezvous was none other than the house of the officer in charge of the Provincial police.

This called for investigation. Creeping up to a convenient window our tame sleuth was able to identify the men sitting round two tables, taking part in some mystic rite. They proved to be Gerry Bradley, Walter Henning, Len Rolph, Clint Attwood, Don Martin, Jim Kinley and the Harper brothers. They were as choice a gang of ruffians as one could wish to see. In fact at first it was hard to say if they were masked or merely unshaven.

Conversation was at first difficult to distinguish, but at last such words as "clubs—diamonds—spades—vulnerable—" convinced the listener that some jewel robbery with violence with plans for burying the loot was being planned. It was evident that the conspirators quarreled bitterly amongst themselves for although at times they seemed to form small partnerships, this always led to arguments.

When the conference broke up in the early hours it seemed to the watcher that the gangsters could not yet agree on a plan, as the last thing he heard was a voice emphasizing the fact that "if you want to get at the diamonds, you must lead with your clubs first."
